SCENIC ROUTE

CREOLE BUS SENSATION (Code: GRE03)

Duration
4 h

Originally British, the Creole buses were the first large means of transportation on the island in the 50's. Neglected and forgotten over the course of the years due to the competition of modern transport, they are currently making their comeback to provide you with the opportunity of savouring how Grenada was in the early days! Nothing has changed: bright colours, and padded wooden benches. So, off we go for a truly local cocktail. Grenada's capital is British in nature with the Carenage, a little harbour set in the hollow of an ancient volcano. This is our point of departure from where we launch ourselves in the assault of St George's. It is indeed a bit of a climb to reach the heights of Grenadian history; we are on our way to the panoramas that can be admired at Fort Frederick which overlooks the small capital. Its ancient stones and rocks tell the tale of the culture shock between England and France in the old days. Fort Frederick, stands dominant above the tropical rainforest and the Caribbean Sea, offering you a stop with a panoramic view of 360 degree. Leaving Fort Frederick behind, head to the south of the island, "surfing" the hill tops, as the bus follows the road along the tropical hills and slides down the Grenadian countryside. You will then arrive at Quarantine Point for a photo stop with a view of the bays of Grand Anse and Morne Rouge before going to the beach for a one hour stop, with your feet in the water, your head below the sea grape trees and a rum punch in your hand. A short drive to return to the cruise terminal will end this tour. Guests must be at least 5 years old to participate.

Please note: Maximum weight is 90 kilos. Beach chair available for rent at an additional cost. Guests must be in good health to climb the forts; however, they can stay in the bus during the visit. Guests must be at least 5 years old to participate. Camouflage clothing is not permitted in Grenada.
